Missoula Farmers' Market 2020 Season Ends
Grateful for Community's Support

[Missoula, Montana]: Due to below freezing temperatures and a spike in COVID-19 cases locally, the Missoula Farmers' Market has ended its 2020 season.

"We are grateful to our community for supporting local farmers and food purveyors during this unusual season," says Lou Ann Crowley, Board President of the Missoula Farmers' Market. "We are already planning for 2021's season and look forward to again providing a safe and welcoming atmosphere."

Fortunately, local food enthusiasts will have a spacious indoor venue opening on November 14th. The Missoula Valley Winter Market will operate in the former Lucky's Market in the Southgate Mall on Saturdays from 9am-2pm and will feature more than 50 vendors.
